"ONE, FAIR JUDEAN, HIL VRH NON JUDEAM DOMO".—(Cicero.)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24th, 1862

Another bone of contention.

The bump of combativeness is so largely developed in our Senatorial craniums, that some question or another must be constantly agitated to dissipate the spleen which would otherwise congulate, and impede the action of our legislative machine. The Capital question came, like a regular Santa Rosa gale, bearing down everything before it, reminding us of those heated debates in other countries where spittoons and pewter pots fly across the scene, and hats heads and umbrellas suffer by contact with foreign bodies. For a few days a lull set in, and the Senate-hall became so stupid and uninteresting, that the Diplomatic box was deserted, not a solitary "tacheco" enlivened the Bar with his applause, the Editors and reporters had fled from the arena. In such an extremity the Deputies of Congress came to the rescue, giving notice of another grand pitched battle, on the National Debt.

The performances commenced on Monday afternoon with some overtures about changing the salaries of public officers. Nexo was a project by Messrs. Orono, Moreno and Ocampo to upset the paper-currency standard, of 340 8 to the dollar(no ; a codicil bequeathing 4 months' pay to the orphan employees of the defunct Government. There is a slight difference of opinion as to the Presidents salary at present it is 25,000 $ per month, but some of the members, taking our hint, propose an increase. Sr. Zuviria sets down 26,666 $ me, while Dr. Zuvalia goes as far as 36,333 $, as fair remuneration for the labour of the Presidential office.

Some difficulty arose touching the order of projects, on the National Debt, although the result must be alike—honorable credit if we pay; disgrace and public shame if we repudiate. But punctilio is omnipotent in South America and, in taking the bull by the horns, we must not disarrange our shirt-collar. The perjerdor completed several interesting pieces, each struggling to be first.

At length the floating debt got fairly launched, and we found ourselves at once in deep water. Sor. Gorostiaga ably inculcated that precept of monthly "Pay your debts." The committee proposed to convert the floating debt into public Bonds of 6 p% with 1 per cent sinking fund. Most of the experienced members tacitly acquiesced, but Sor Marmol condemned the interest as excessive, adding that the payment of Dor. quix debts nowise affected our national credit. Sor. Iribarne thought it a pity the holders of vouchers should get almost full value, by this favorable invension. Dr. Zuviria, on the other hand, insisted, in common honesty, on the figure of 2 p% being fixed a sinking-fund. The Minister of Government reproved both innovations, the one giving too little—the other too much. Hereupon Sr. Marmol rebutted the bill on the grounds that Dorrego made away with the Mendoza fund!

He then handed in the following model project :

"The legitimate public debt is hereby consolidated ; Congress hereafter to determine the interest and amortization.

After half an hour's consultation, the debate continued : Sr. Velez declared that in this question he hit his head, like his namesake, outside the door, in order to be guided only by cool reason. He compared the members to the guests of Macbeth, before whom the shade of Duncan appeared in this res vexata of National Debt. Sr Orono opined that we should be knocking our heads against the wall to please ourselfs, if we refuse to pay just debts, out of spite to Dr Derqui or Gen. Urquiza, whom we may accuse hereafter for any misdeeds laid at their door.

Dinner-hour being at hand, the Minister Government requested to the dissenters to withdraw their motions, which had no chance of success : Sr Marmol replied that he was very sorry to have to refuse, and Att. Iwas put to the vote—Ayes 20, Noes 16.

The first reading had been already carried by 22 to 4.

It is probable the bill will pass fully in to-day's session, and the Chamber may have time to settle the claims of Mariano Bonds, which promises us another bone of contention, and will give full scope to the abusive and laudatory talents of the members.

Our Project

Projects are all the go now : a man to be popular, must have a project : a fashionable swell about town loses tone if he has no project. To be invited to a ball, a dinner, a route, or an inauguration, the sine qua non is a project. People seem to believe in nothing else, and consequently nothing else will go down. Such being the state of things, it will never do to be behind the time. We must come out with our project, but what to hit on, is the rub. A projected Capital, newspaper, railway, or water schemes, is now quite stale, as many are in the field before us ; whilst on the other hand, projected reforms are insupportable, and won't be listened to. We are therefore placed in a dilemma, and although we are awfully full back on the federation scheme, and propose to the members to federalize the clock-tower in the Cabildo or the office of the "Stan ard" still our readers are not like to be of our opinion, and we fear offending their fastidiousness to moot this used-up question at all.

Our project is an "Argentine Bank?, to be managed by a board of 5 Directors, representing each section of the Provinces. The President is to be elected by the board of Directors, each year, to avoid the conflict of co-existing institutions, no other Banks should be tolerated in any part of the Republic, and the members of such defunct institutions should be employed in the new concern : the whole business transactions of such bank should be regulated by the board of Directors, whose credit should be commensurate with the extent of territory they represent.

The Bank should have its agencies throughout the Republic, who should hold office during the pleasure of the Directors, and should be removable only for misconduct.

The debts of all the institutions shut up, by reason of the opening of this new Bank, should be religiously paid off, the Provincial or Municipal of the Argentine bank should never, under any pretence, permit the expenses of the various Provincial agencies to exceed the net profits arising therefrom.

The head-quarters of the Bank should be in Buenos Aires, where the president and board of directors should reside ; but each should be taken that each provincial agency should enjoy as much of the benefits of the institution as the province in which it holds its head-quarters. A correct balance should be rendered by the cashier, on entering office, showing the amount of liabilities assumed, and specie and paper-money in the safe.

All parties wishing to subscribe to the stock of this bank, will please send in their names at the Standard office, where prospectuses and every information will be given, gratis.

Congress—Senators

Congress met yesterday. Dr Navarro acting as president.

The rejected road 'de los Suchales' was the order of the day.

Dr Cullet, as member of the commission, moved the adoption of the project. He pointed out the great utility of the road to merchants and others, and called upon the house to support the measure.

Dr V. Sarsfield opposed the measure, and asserted that the road was an impossibility, and that even the commercial body would reject it, and asked for 24 hours reperition by the house.

Sr. Cullet, in reply, would remark that formerly it only required twelve days to come from San Diago to Santa Fe, and from Santa Fe here, whilst now he would be a smart fellow who would come with his carts in less than 40, and often more.

After a desultory debate, it was put to the house, and carried by a large majority.

Public Lands.

The Government has just published a decree of great importance relative to public lands situated beyond the present line of frontiers.

The decree itself is very just and proper, but unhappily is dated a year too late, for there are now scarcely any public lands left by the grasping capacity of several officials.

But the law, as many others in this country, is remarkably incomplete, for it recognises that public officers have been speculating to the exclusion of other parties in public lands and they are not punished and at the same time all other bona fide public employees are prohibited from soliciting any grant—contrary to law—for the right of petition cannot be taken from any citizen.

Government cannot officially declare its cognizance of bad proceedings on the part of its subordinates without taking measures for their immediate punishment, neither can it stigmatise by a wholesale condemnation all its officers, depriving them of rights inherent to every citizen.

Our Provincial Correspondence

Rosario 16th September 1862.

The revolution in Catamarca is an episode which has somewhat taken us up in the provinces. We must say that we want of something to excite us from the dead-alive state of society as every thing in the shape of excitement is monopolised by the good folks of Buenos Aires, and the Provinces of the interior have been waiting with something bordering on apathy, with a tinge of regret that may be coined into a more decided feeling, on of these days, for the conclusion of the unhappy question of the capital, and the commencement of wholesome legislation for the nation.

As for the revolt in Catamarca, I suppose a clear that the unconstitutional proceedings of Mr. Ouill have aroused about a healthy reaction ; and in this country you are aware that to change either for the better or the worse, can be effected without a revolution. For that matter, here are the people for all legislative needs. Believe that the cure is at times worse than the disease, but, nevertheless your regulations must be undergoing one way or other they might become applicable.

It appears by the last mail that the commissioner sent up by General Mitre, has executed the revolution and set to carry the governorship of Dr. Ramon Correa, who was legally elected some months ago, and deposed by Ouill.

The papers in Tucuman are agreeably occupied in abusing the Tribune and in making an inquiry why during all that co-parmentary to the "Sultana" of the Inter province. I would advise you to read the articles in the La Index if you want an idea of life in some of the provinces of the interior. Of commerce and agriculture you will not find a word; but what is commerce, what is agriculture worth, when Pearson is the great question of the day ? Minor considerations fade into insignificance before the paramount and urgent necessity of hoeking the character of our political opponent.

From San Juan the news is cheering as to the indisputable richness of the silver mines of that region, but as yet little has been done in the way of working them. Those mines will one day be the pride and prosperity of the Argentine Nation, as will such a mine that on the map in fifteen or twenty years.

From Mendoza the tidings are very bad. There seems to be no doubt that a coaching is wrong out there. I have heard that upwards of fifty prominent citizens have been banished without trial or reason, on the mere words without any other authority than the will of the Governor. I object to say Government having any such power.

In Cordova a friend writes me that all kind of business is at a stand still for want of confidence in the National Congress, and the fear that the floating debt will not be arranged this year. In Cordova there exist claims to about a million and a half of silver dollars against the defunct National Government.

It is somewhat against my will that I write to you about politics ; but, my dear sir, there is very little else to write about just now. Business is at a standstill. Notwithstanding the small amount of merchandize introduced into the country in 1861, the receipts of the adauna in Rosario will not equal, by a couple of hundred thousand dollars, the receipts of 1860. By the by, speaking of the adauna, a rather funny incident occurred here the other day, that I may as well describe, in the absence of more interesting news :

The Diario, a daily paper which has made itself an exhaut conspicuous for its independence of style, printed, one day, in its columns, the fact of the administrator of the custom house paying out national silver, to the prejudice of the trading community. The collector felt himself hugely offended that the Press should dare to animadvert on his conduct, and ordered an action against the editor of the Diario, asking for 5-00 hard dollars fine, or two years hard labour ! and seven days after published a most curious letter to the Diario, of the Director, in which new some of the most extraordinary admissions, you will see the letter published in all the papers. The administrator, it seems, had influence in high quarters, and the Government has withdrawn its subscription from a paper that thus dares to arraign the acts of one of its officers. Not no tangare appears to be it, methinks. What it will say when it reads the silent sions of this employee I do not know

A few words on a subject which interests you more than details on the daily etc I have touched. I shall leave in a few days, some specimens of Santa Fe cotton, and some samples of it manufactured here ; now a small parcel, which I destine for you as soon as I receive other samples which have produced. It is easy that the specimens produced some of the finer samples of cotton grown in the Confederation, and I am by no means sure that many persons interesting themselves in its culture, I trust soon to be able to give you some valuable information. In the meantime I subscribe myself

Yours truly,

PEMBROOKE.

To the Editor of the "Standard."

Sir,

Being fully convinced that you as a British subject, even feel for me, who have been deeply injured by the cruel measures authorities here ; and who have been deeply injured by the rendition of your columns, I desire to put from this country, I have not yet to warn all others—not my countrymen alone, but seamen of all nations—why may visit Buenos Ayres, that in my store list, on sale, on seizure made, in the shape of rope and canvas, which I had supplied my ship with for the voyage, and which I can partly used—that is to say, none of the bolts of canvas, nor any of the coils of rope were cut, or touched. Should the intrinsic value of these articles was demanded from me, are the authorities would grant me my clearance, or land these said stores, in depot in the custom house, there to await their decision, in a matter of such high importance to the shipping interest, while I am pleading, my way home to Old England ; and in pursuing my homeward course, when I arrive at the stern latitude of the British Islands—we will be set to summon—and there pass on to assize and heavy verdict—and all moment look for in writ from a to be thus deprived of the use of my vessels, or pay an exorbitant demurrage, in not but a pil to swallow ; but as seamen, himself, up to an early and to let ourselves on the element we have been associated with from childhood, free from all the chicanaries of the land—and when we visit a foreign land like this, to be wronged, as I have been, and the interest of my employer to be sacrificed, through the over-officiousness of an ignorant custom-house officer, loath to call for justice to be done to British subjects ; and I feel convinced that the generality men who from the lowest of the country are not cognizant of these stern facts, and when these wrongs are brought before them by the gentlemen who have the high honour to represent British interests in this country, that the matter would be sifted, and the honest man detected from the smuggler.

Trusting you, sir, for your kindness and courtesy, and for the part you have taken in this matter previously, I beg to subscribe myself

Your obedient servant,

ARTHUR BEAGEY.

Cotton in Downing-street.

Foreign Office, July 18th, 1862.

Sir,—I am directed by Earl Russel to transmit to you, for the information of the Manchester Cotton Supply Association, an extract of a despatch for Her Majesty's Consul at Rosario, relative to the growth of cotton in the Argentine provinces.

I am, Sir,

Your most obedient servant.

JAMES MURRAY.

Thos. Bazley, Esq.

British Consulate, May 5th 1862.

My Lord,—With reference to Mr. Hammond's despatch, transmitting me, by your Lordship's directions, on the subject of the cotton capabilities, to proceed up the Rio Salado and visit the valley of that river, for the purpose of ascertaining if cotton were growing there in thousands of acres as reported to the Cotton Supply Association at Manchester, and, further, stating that I would inform your Lordship of the result of my mission to the above named Association ; that as the scarcity of labour in that district, I have the honour to state that my first inquiries elicited the information that there exists hardly any cotton in the valley in question except on horseback overland, and no large orders could be executed in the time required. That I am designing, should a few years back, to not yet in existence, therefore, a journey by water seemed equally impracticable.

Since these facts came to my knowledge, I have been informed by M Coghlan, Civil Engineer, lately in the service of the Buenos Ayres Great Southern Railway Company, and who explored the River Salado in 1858, that there is no cotton in the neighbourhood of the river's banks with which he became acquainted as far as Havachi, in the Province of Santiago, a distance of 700 miles from the river's mouth at Santa Fé. The only cotton which Mr Coghlan was cognizant as growing up in that country has a very limited quantity in part of Santiago, which forms a segment of the Salado Valley ; and this cotton he believes to have been the relic of what was planted there in former times before British manufactured goods were imported into that country.

On making inquiries of Dr Gordon, Her Majesty's Vice-Consul at Cordova, that gentleman informed me that "the deceased introduction of British manufactures to the interior, and the comparatively low prices at which they are sold, have put a stop to the cultivation of cotton in the Confederation. In former times the usual price was 20 to 30 reals [7s. 6d to 15s.] per arroba of 24 lbs. but the small quantity which is now brought obtains nearly double that price."

I do not this information to be of importance, because I believe it is in a very central position of the Argentine provinces, therefore highly probable to be the market to which the cotton fibre would be brought for sale if it were cultivated or even grown for sale in such a quantity as to make its collection worthy of attention.

Pursuing my investigations further, I have to report that a very intelligent gentleman, resident at Rosario (Mr. Lamond) the seed of the fine of Thomas Duguid & Co. of Glasgow, has been in the habit of importing cotton seed from Liverpool, and has distributed it to the farmers in the neighbourhood of Rosario, and that the cotton grown from this seed is of a very superior description, and that the cotton plant is a perennial, and will yield for two years successively.

I have also been informed by Mr. Bunge, a merchant of Rosario, that he has seen cotton growing in the province of Entre Rios, which he considers to be of a very superior description.

I have, &c.

Cotton in Manchester.

Manchester, Sept. 20.

The Cotton Supply Association has received a despatch from Mr. Consul Hutchinson, dated Rosario, May 5th, 1862, stating that he has been in the habit of importing cotton seed from Liverpool, and has distributed it to the farmers in the neighbourhood of Rosario, and that the cotton grown from this seed is of a very superior description, and that the cotton plant is a perennial, and will yield for two years successively.

He has also been informed by Mr. Bunge, a merchant of Rosario, that he has seen cotton growing in the province of Entre Rios, which he considers to be of a very superior description.

Mr. Hutchinson has been up the Salado river, and has found cotton growing there in thousands of acres as reported to the Cotton Supply Association at Manchester, and, further, stating that he would inform your Lordship of the result of his mission to the above named Association ; that as the scarcity of labour in that district, I have the honour to state that my first inquiries elicited the information that there exists hardly any cotton in the valley in question except on horseback overland, and no large orders could be executed in the time required. On making inquiries of Dr Gordon, Her Majesty's Vice-Consul at Cordova, that gentleman informed me that "the increased introduction of British manufactures to the interior, and the comparatively low prices at which they are sold, have put a stop to the cultivation of cotton in the Confederation. In former times the usual price was 20 to 30 reals [7s. 6d to 15s.] per arroba of 24 lbs. but the small quantity which is now brought obtains nearly double that price."

Pursuing my investigations further, I have to report that a very intelligent gentleman, resident at Rosario (Mr. Lamond) the seed of the fine of Thomas Duguid & Co. of Glasgow, on the berth for Marcelites at 70 frs for dry hides and 40 frs for hides with 10 per cent pulmage.

The latest west report from the States.

Wool. The market has been very active since our last report, the high prices paid in the Country for Fleece, and the enormous rate for exchange and gold, has had the effect of raising the value on Foreign Wools 10 ary 12 per cent. and on Domestic Wools about the same. The market is very firm, and holders not anxious to sell even at the advance. The sales of Domestic Fleeces have been small, as but little Wool of the new clip has come to market yet, but the price appears to be 50 cents for a Medium to Fine Wool. Of Pulled, about 60,000 lb. Super. Extra. and Lambs have changed hands at 48 asr. 50 cents. Of California, the market is nearly bare, 636 bales have been sold this week, a portion of which was Fine American grade—prices not transpired. Sales of Foreign have been small; 150 bales Buenos Ayres, 200 do. Cordova, and 20 do. Mexico sold on private terms.

EDITION FRANCAISE.

Septembre 23—1862.

ETRANGER.

On lit dans le Moniteur:

"Le ministre de la marine a reçu par le courrier de Chine le résumé des opérations décisives entreprises par les forces alliées de France et d'Angleterre pour délivrer Shang-hai des bandes de chinois rebelles qui, depuis si longtemps, ravagent les environs et menacent la ville même de la destruction que marque partout le passage de ces brigands.

"Depuis mainte dernière, les forces françaises et anglaises stationnées à Shanghai gardaient une attitude purement défensive, assumant par leur présence la sécurité de la colonie européenne et de ses importants établissements commerciaux, mais observant une exacte neutralité dans la lutte entre les impériaux et la rébellion dont cette partie du Céleste-Empire est le théâtre.

"Cependant, le cercle formé par les bandes rebelles se resserrant de plus en plus autour de la ville, il devenait indispensable, pour préserver Shang-hai du sinistre dont nos nationaux avaient les premières victimes et dans laquelle tout le commerce européen aurait péri, d'attaquer vigoureusement les rebelles dans les positions importantes qu'ils avaient prises peu à peu, et de les refouler hors du voisinage immédiat de la place.

"L'honneur et le prestige du drapeau de la civilisation, si glorieusement porté par nos armes jusqu'aux limites du Nouveau Orient, exigeaient des mesures promptes et énergiques.

"L'amiral Protet, commandant en chef des forces françaises dans ces parages, avait proposé un projet analogue sur les villes de Kiadine et de Ning-Po, centre des positions du Fernier rebelle. Ce plan fut adopté, et le brave amiral qui l'avait conçu et qui l'a exécuté en a payé le succès de sa vie.

"Du 29 avril au 11 mai les forces réunies, au nombre de 3,000 hommes, sous les ordres de l'amiral Protet, Page, et du général Staveley, soutenus par 1,500 régulières impériaux chinois, sous le commandement du colonel américain Ward, prirent donc les quatres grandes villes fortifiées de Kiadine, Tsingpo, Ning-Po et Nokin.

"Les rebelles avaient employé plus de deux ans à compléter la seule place de Kiadine sur les impériaux. Cette rapide campagne, en délivrant Shang hai, a sauvé la cause européenne en Chine. Ces bandes de pillards se retirent désordonnées et, en deçà jusqu'ici, ne se sont plus dé pompage à reprendre hostilement.

"Mais ce glorieux succès est achetécherement. Le 17 mai, à six heures du soir, le brave amiral Protet, en conduisant un petite troupe à un dernier assaut, est tombé au milieu de son triomphe, frappé d'un coup de fusil entre les deux yeux. Le même jour un autre officier, le capitaine de vaisseau de Kersaint, succédait à l'amiral Protet dans le commandement. Au départ du courrier, les rebelles fuyaient en désordre devant les forces alliées."

Un fou croisé de Propositions.

Le nombre sept, dit-on, recèle en lui un pouvoir magique, une certaine vertu mystérieuse que les traditions ne nous expliquent pas, mais quelles nous certifient avec une assurance, que nous ne pouvions jusqu'ici contester. Le "national" en recapitulant les propositions successivement émises aux Chambres, nous démontre qu'il n'a fallu que le malheureux public de Buenos Aires passât par la filière de Actes, au nombre de sept, pour arriver au point où il en est. Le nombre sept y perd même ses droits et sa réputation, en inventant une proposition nous paraît encore plus inadmissible que celle qui a été repoussée par les autres; mais nous ne pouvons jusqu'ici contester.
